First of all I would like to thank you for the possibility to judge some of your beautiful cats. It is really an honor and a privilege as a birman breeder. For those who know me you know I love to see on the look that it is a true Birman. I like the size, not too small neither too big. In some of the pictures it was a little difficult to see the overall cat but that is the challenge of being a judge.

ADULTS  A little hard to judge these ones when you don't see the whole body. I would like to give a price of honour to cat 4. He looks so timid and sweet.

11	Such a well balanced cat with stunning legs and all white paws seems to be in order. The tail is really in proportion and balance.. Love the ear setting and also the size of the ears,. So well placed! Even chin and cheeks are well developed. The contrast on the points is so perfect and color and pattern is also good. A dreamy look with that good birman expression.	1
3	This looks like a young one! Sweet expression and look. The head looks like it is developing well, a little weak chin thou. Ears is placed good with a broad base. The contrast on the body and points are verry nice, Also here you can notice a good striping cat. Good white paws, A little of a baby look.	2
7b	This cat really shows himself well, Proud and knowing he owns the world. It is only the reds that can transfer this feeling of nonchalance. Good in size and look at his lovely legs. Good shaped head and profile also the chin looks good. Really low on the white paws but seems to have a body you can die for. Excellent contrast on the coat and points.	3

THE BEST EYES

Oh what a challenge with so many nice eyes. But it easier when you only shall look at the eyes in shape, placement and color. When you have a Birman that has so many things to look at it's not so easy when you look at deep blue eyes and also have to take in other things that is important.
